J. Meek,2010-08-09 Renowned photographer A J Meek takes the novitiate on an inspired visual journey with eighty eight color photographs of the interiors of churches and synagogues located in south Louisiana mostly along the lower Mississippi River valley Tourists may crowd the famous European cathedrals such as Notre Dame in Paris and Westminster Abbey in London Yet the splendors of local churches in America all too often remain cloistered and unheralded Meek s beautiful photographs correct this oversight for Louisiana a state that features a great many beautiful and long standing holy places Often incorporating long exposures and select framing the images in the first section of Sacred Light encompass altars chancels and sanctuaries The second section contains photographs of statues representing deities angels madonnas and saints often seen with intense color derived from stained glass windows or artificial light Light itself is the subject of the third and last section In several photographs light is transformed by a window into a kaleidoscope of color on a wooden pew or pulpit chair Other times the light seems to radiate a living presence of its own Additionally the book includes an essay by Louisiana State University art historian and liturgical space consultant Marchita B Mauck Sacred Light also contains photographs of some of the church and synagogue restoration projects after Hurricane Katrina Meek relates that the now famous storm of August 2005 was the shadow he was looking for that defines blessed light He places emphasis on restoration not destruction as a testimony to the resilience of the human spirit

Words of Light Eduardo Cadava, 2018-06-05 Here Eduardo Cadava demonstrates that Walter Benjamin articulates his conception of history through the language of photography Focusing on Benjamin's discussions of the flashes and images of history he argues that the questions raised by this link between photography and history touch on issues that belong to the entire trajectory of his writings the historical and political consequences of technology the relation between reproduction and mimesis images and history remembering and forgetting allegory and mourning and visual and linguistic representation The book establishes the photographic constellation of motifs and themes around which Benjamin organizes his texts and thereby becomes a lens through which we can begin to view his analysis of the convergence between the new technological media and a revolutionary concept of historical action and understanding Written in the form of theses what Cadava calls snapshots in prose the book memorializes Benjamin's own poetic method of writing It enacts a mode of conceiving history that is neither linear nor successive but rather discontinuous constructed from what Benjamin calls dialectical images In this way it not only suggests the essential rapport between the fragmentary form of Benjamin's writing and his effort to write a history of modernity but it also skillfully clarifies the relation between Benjamin and his contemporaries the relation between fascism and aesthetic ideology It gives us the most complete picture to date of Benjamin's reflections on history
