Yorkshire Wolds Tony Waltham, 2024-05-27 This book is one of a popular series that seeks to tell the story of some of Britain s most beautiful landscapes Written with the general reader the walker the lover of the countryside firmly in mind these pages open the door to a fascinating story of bygone oceans deltas mineralisation and glacial landscapes Millions of years ago rocks that now form the lovely terrains of the Moors and Wolds were laid down on the floors of shallow seas and were then deformed by plate tectonics before being shaped by streams and rivers The sandstones were left to form the high Moors whereas the chalk was carved into the rolling Wolds Ice Age lakes came and went and all the time wave action was fretting the coastline into glorious and varied profiles With the help of numerous maps diagrams and photographs most of which are taken from his personal collection geologist Tony Waltham tells the fascinating story of eastern Yorkshire explaining just how the landscapes of sandstone uplands chalk hills and clay vales came to look as they do Including suggestions for walks and places to visit to appreciate the best of the inland and coastal landforms this accessible and readable book opens up amazing new perspectives for all who are interested in the diverse landscapes of this beautiful area

From Coast to Fen: Archaeology in a Dynamic Landscape Claire Christie, Joshua T. Hogue, 2025-07-18 Excavations across East Lincolnshire reveal prehistoric Iron Age Roman and post medieval settlements saltmaking and industrial activity shaped by changing landscapes The area between Anderby Creek and Bicker Fen Lincolnshire to the west of the Lincolnshire Wolds represents a dynamic landscape both in terms of its natural and human aspects This volume presents the results of an extensive programme of archaeological excavation undertaken by Headland Archaeology UK Ltd and Allen Archaeology Ltd from 2018 to 2019 where a total of 15 sites were excavated The excavations uncovered a panoply of remains spanning the prehistoric through to modern periods providing important insights into changing patterns of occupation and the way this diverse landscape was utilised As evidenced through the archaeological works the area saw limited activity during the early prehistoric period in part reflecting the prevailing environmental conditions in which most of the area was inundated Among the earliest recorded finds was an enigmatic middle Bronze Age timber structure as well as a copper alloy axe During the Roman period there is evidence for an expansion in activity across the Scheme with formerly inundated areas becoming accessible Activity within the northern half of the Scheme was focused upon salt production Two of these sites were dated to the late Roman period contrary to the prevailing notion that the salt industry in this region had declined by the mid 2nd century AD Within the southern half of the Scheme were several Roman farmsteads some featuring timber buildings Notable among these was an unusual post built moated structure From these sites a range of artefactual and environmental data was collected providing important insights into the nature of agricultural regimes Evidence of medieval and post medieval activity was also uncovered providing important insights into the development of rural settlement against a backdrop of landscape and environmental changes Evidence of late to post medieval clay extraction and brick manufacture was also identified
