The First World War has survived as part of our national memory in a way no previous war has ever done This collection of letters which lay untouched for almost ninety years allows a unique glimpse into the war as experienced by one family at the time transporting us back to an era which is now slipping tantalizingly out of living memory The Slaters the family at the heart of these letters lived in Oxford Like most families they were both typical and unique Gilbert the father of the family had been head of Ruskin College in Oxford and during the war found work as the first Professor of Indian Economics in Madras His wife Violet grew to detest the war and became an increasingly vocal pacifist as the slaughter continued Owen their eldest son a schoolboy in 1914 was fighting in France by war s end In the letters they wrote to each other and their friends at this time we see how the war increasingly impacted upon each of their lives and the life of the world around them rationing Violet s increasing involvement in radical politics the deaths of friends the fear of Zeppelin raids when in London the endless discussions between Violet and Gilbert about how to keep their son out of the trenches and the growth of Owen from schoolboy to soldier serving as a junior officer on the Western Front Above all in their privacy and immediacy their inconsistencies and false hopes these letters bring us as near as we can ever be to understanding what people thought feared and hoped for during these momentous years The Great War of Words Peter Buitenhuis,2011-11-01

I wouldn t have had one of you stay at home though I had a dozen sons That is if it is the noble war they all say it is Surely they wouldn t deceive mothers J M Barrie In September 1914 twenty five of Britain s most distinguished authors met under the chairmanship of C F G Masterman head of the war propaganda bureau to discuss how they could assist the Allied effort They included such prominent figures as H G Wells Arnold Bennett John Galsworthy John Masefield John Buchan Edith Wharton and Henry James In The Great War of Words Peter Buitenhuis tells the hitherto unknown story of the secret collaboration between leading writers and the government He examines the propaganda books and articles they wrote and also the work of those opposed to the war such as G B Shaw and Bertrand Russell The official line was the the urbane French and the decent British had to defend civilization against the savagery of the invading Huns However after the war many writers became deeply embittered about the Allied propaganda machine and their role in it There was a growing conviction that too many lies had been told and that in propagating Allied myths they had sacrificed the all important detachment of the writer Buitenhuis chronicles both the disillusionment of the former propagandists and the reaction against their elders by younger writers many of whom had served in the trenches The consequences for post war literature were profound the prestige and power of authorship dwindled significantly while the old rhetoric based on a widely held consensus collapsed and was replaced by lean ironic and often understated modes of writing In the Fourth Year
