Internal Desecration Traumatization And Representations Of God:

Internal Desecration Carrie Doehring, 1993 Overwhelming life experiences such as physical and sexual abuse during childhood have the potential to obliterate internal representations of a loving God In this book the author explores the inter relationship between severity of childhood traumatization and mental representations of God through a comprehensive review of psychodynamic literature and quantitative research methodology The research findings of a study with forty seven women demonstrate the complexity of this subject and illustrate how the empirical truth of quantitative findings may or may not resonate with the metaphorical truth of psychodynamic models of traumatization The author discusses the significance of these findings for clinicians and faith communities

Sites of Violence, Sites of Grace Cynthia Hess, 2008-12-16 Cynthia Hess offers a thoughtful reconstruction of Christian nonviolence through an examination of both theological and theoretical works She shows how contemporary understandings of violence and the human person challenge traditional views of nonviolence as pacifism and the refusal of military violence Hess begins with an analysis of the extensive writings on nonviolence by John Howard Yoder one of the foremost twentieth century thinkers on this subject She then seeks to deepen his view by probing the insights of trauma scholars who explore the powerful and lasting effects of traumatic violence on individuals and communities These scholars often maintain that many survivors continue to hold the reality of traumatic violence within their bodies and minds so that it becomes part of them as they move through time In light of this claim Hess argues that Christian nonviolence must move beyond pacifism to directly address the problem of internalized violence In conversation with resources in Yoder's work as well as feminist theory and trauma studies she analyzes an often overlooked dimension of religious nonviolence the creation of communities in which traumatized persons can survive and flourish With its highly interdisciplinary character this book presents a fresh perspective on Christian nonviolence that not only challenges traditional views but also reclaims the centrality of nonviolence for contemporary Christian theology and practice
