Document Supply Centre,2002 NASA Technical Memorandum ,1963 Diffusion and Adoption of Information Technology Karlheinz Kautz,Jan Pries-Heje,2013-06-05 It is well known that the introduction of a new technology in one organization not always produces the intended benefits Levine 1994 In many cases either the receivers do not reach the intended level of use or simply the technology is rejected because it does not match with the expectations true or false and the accepted psychological effort to use it The case of formal methods is a paradigmatic example of continual failures The published cases with problems or failures only constitute the visible part of a large iceberg of adoption cases It is difficult to get companies to openly express the problems they had however from the experience of the author failure cases are very common and they include any type of company Many reasons to explain the failures and in some cases the successes could be postulated however the experiences are not structured enough and it is difficult to extract from them useful guidelines for avoiding future problems Generally speaking there is a trend to find the root of the problems in the technology itself and in its adequacy with the preexistent technological context Technocratic technology transfer models describe the problems in terms of these aspects Although it is true that those factors limit the probability of success there is another source of explanations linked to the individuals and working teams and how they perceive the technology International Operations Management Alberto F. De Toni,2016-04-22 International Operations Management Lessons in Global Business uses a fascinating selection of case studies researched during the International Operations Management Project sponsored by the European Commission to produce a valuable view of businesses in Western and Eastern traditions Ranging from China Post and Flextronics International Singapore to Electrolux Ford and GlaxoSmithKline the studies link conceptual and practical approaches in five areas international operations management strategy sourcing and manufacturing new product development logistics and networked organisations Throughout the authors compare the Western and Eastern approaches to business and introduce theory to clarify the comparison and the real consequences of internationalisation With its balance of theoretical and applied content this volume created from an exciting collaboration between universities and schools of management in Europe and China serves as both a primary and supplementary source for higher level students and educators and as a worthwhile read for interested practitioners
