PETER CHAMBERLAIN and TERRY GANDER

WW2
FACT FILES

The main offensive and defensive power of any army is invested in its light and medium artillery; they are the backbone of any modern force. During World War 2 this was proved many times and described in this Fact File are the many types of light and medium artillery pieces used by the major combatants. The range of calibres covered is from 75 mm to 105 mm, and thus this Fact File includes the British 25 pr, the American and German 105 mm howitzers and the Russian 76.2 mm guns. A large section is devoted to the numerous Skoda guns included in the 75 to 105 mm range; and many elderly relics of World War 1 are covered as well as the more modern pieces designed during the war and just before 1939. Nearly every gun described is illustrated, many by photographs never previously published. This Fact File is one of the most wide-ranging and important of the series.

Light And Medium Field Artillery Ww2 Fact :

Britain's Final Defence Dale Clarke, 2016-11-07 Known affectionately as Dad's Army the Home Guard was Britain's very serious attempt to protect our shores from invasion by Nazi Germany in the Second World War. In the Spitfire summer of 1940 all that the 1 million unpaid untrained part-timers of the Local Defence Volunteers as the organisation was originally called wanted was a service rifle for each man but even that was too much for a country threatened by defeat to provide. Britain's Final Defence is the first book to explore the efforts made to arm the home defence force between 1940 and 1944 and describe the full range of weaponry available for Britain's last stand against invading Axis forces. The Field Artillery

Boyd L. Dastrup, 1994 This reference book by a well-known historian is the very first to give a short history of the development of the field artillery from the Middle Ages to the present along with biographical profiles of leading figures and bibliographical essays about the most important writings on the subject. Dastrup defines the evolution of this combat force and weapons system in terms of technology, organization, tactics and doctrine. This volume is designed for academic and professional library reference sections and for use in courses in military history and military technology. This guide is suitable for reference and text purposes and made accessible for varied uses through internal cross-referencing, appendices and a well-framed general index. The Western European and Mediterranean Theaters in World War II Donal
