Fogarty International Center for Advanced Study in the Health Sciences,1989 The International Journal of Aging & Human Development ,1999 Journal of the National Cancer Institute ,1996 National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1992 Sky Above Clouds Wendy L. Miller,Gene D. Cohen,2016-04-01 Through their scientific research and clinical practice husband and wife team Gene D Cohen and Wendy L Miller uncovered new clues about how the aging mind can build resilience and continue growth even during times of grave illness thus setting aside the traditional paradigm of aging as a time of decline Cohen considered one of the founding fathers of geriatric psychiatry describes what happens to the brain as it ages and the potential that is often overlooked Miller an expressive arts therapist and educator highlights stories of creative growth in the midst of illness and loss encountered through her clinical practice

Together Cohen and Miller show that with the right tools the uncharted territory of aging and illness can in fact be navigated. In this book the reader finds the real story of not only Cohen's belief in potential but also how he and his family creatively used it in facing his own serious health challenges. With Miller's insights and expressive psychological writing Sky Above Clouds tells the inside story of how attitude, community, creativity and love shape a life with or without health even to our dying. Cohen and Miller draw deeply on their own lessons learned as they struggle through aging, illness and loss within their own family and eventually Cohen's own untimely death. What happens when the expert on aging begins to age? And what happens when the therapist who helps others cope with illness and loss is forced to confront her own responses to these experiences? The result is a richly informative and emotional journey of growth.

Prevention and Management of Osteoporosis World Health Organization, 2003-12-31 Bone is hard tissue that is in a constant state of flux being built up by bone forming cells called osteoblasts while also being broken down or resorbed by cells known as osteoclasts. During childhood and adolescence bone formation is dominant; bone length and girth increase with age ending at early adulthood when peak bone mass is attained. Males generally exhibit a longer growth period resulting in bones of greater size and overall strength. In males after the age of 20 bone resorption becomes predominant and bone mineral content declines about 4% per decade. Females tend to maintain peak mineral content until menopause at which time it declines about 15% per decade. Osteoporosis is a disease characterized by low bone mass and structural deterioration of bone tissue leading to bone fragility and an increased susceptibility to fractures especially of the hip, spine and wrist. Osteoporosis occurs primarily as a result of normal ageing but can arise as a result of impaired development of peak bone mass e.g. due to delayed puberty or undernutrition or excessive bone loss during adulthood e.g. due to estrogen deficiency in women, undernutrition or corticosteroid use. Osteoporosis induced fractures cause a great burden to society. Hip fractures are the most serious as they nearly always result in hospitalization, are fatal about 20% of the time and produce permanent disability about half the time. Fracture rates increase rapidly with age and the lifetime risk of fracture in 50 year old women is about 40% similar to that for coronary heart disease. In 1990 there were 1.7 million hip fractures alone worldwide with changes in population demographics this figure is expected to rise to 6 million by 2050. To help describe the nature and consequences of osteoporosis as well as strategies for its prevention and management a WHO Scientific Group meeting of international experts was held in Geneva which resulted in this technical report. This monograph describes in detail normal bone development and the causes and risk factors for developing osteoporosis. The burden of osteoporosis is characterized in terms of mortality, morbidity and economic costs. Methods for its prevention and treatment are discussed in detail for both pharmacological and non pharmacological approaches. For each approach the strength of the scientific evidence is listed. The report also provides cost analysis information for potential interventions and discusses important aspects of developing national policies to deal with osteoporosis. Recommendations are made to the general population, care providers, health administrators and researchers Lastly national organizations and support groups are listed by country
