Making Nature Sacred John Gatta, 2004-10-14 Since colonial times the sense of encountering an unseen transcendental Presence within the natural world has been a characteristic motif in American literature and culture American writers have repeatedly perceived in nature something beyond itself and beyond themselves In this book John Gatta argues that the religious import of American environmental literature has yet to be fully recognized or understood Whatever their theology American writers have perennially construed the nonhuman world to be a source in Rachel Carson s words of something that takes us out of ourselves Making Nature Sacred explores how the quest for natural revelation has been pursued through successive phases of American literary and intellectual history And it shows how the imaginative challenge of reading landscapes has been influenced by biblical hermeneutics Though focused on adaptations of Judeo Christian religious traditions it also samples Native American African American and Buddhist forms of ecospirituality It begins with Colonial New England writers such as Anne Bradstreet and Jonathan Edwards re examines pivotal figures such as Henry Thoreau and John Muir and takes account of writings by Mary Austin Rachel Carson and many others along the way The book concludes with an assessment of the spiritual renaissance underway in current environmental writing as represented by five noteworthy poets and by authors such as Wendell Berry Annie Dillard Marilynne Robinson Peter Matthiessen and Barry Lopez This engaging study should appeal not only to students of literature but also to those interested in ethics and environmental studies religious studies and American cultural history Keeping Faith with Nature

Alexander, 2012-12-06

THE PROBLEM OF THE INTERPRETATION OF HAMANN Johann Georg Hamann is an intriguing but poorly known figure in the contemporary intellectual world Yet this is the man whom Kierkegaard saluted as Emperor whose writings were to have been arranged for publication by none other than Goethe himself and whom Dilthey numbered among the primordial figures in the rise of modern historical consciousness There are reasons for the persistence of this general ignorance Hamann is deep And in addition there is his forbidding style The readers of Kierkegaard and Dilthey two other giants who themselves achieved late recognition have not had to face this kind of imposing obstacle Not only does Hamann expect his readers to handle themselves in deep water but to intuit their way between his ideas which bob up like islands with no visible connection between them Like Kierkegaard too Hamann has had his troubles with the public He himself referred to the hope that he would be understood by a better posterity In fact only the last few years have seen the printing of some of his more controversial writings in particular his theories on the nature of human sexuality On Art and Literature José Martí, 1982 Brings together essays on literature the plastic arts theater and music which stand with the best of modern criticism

Wilson, 2012-01-01 From the late eighteenth century Germans increasingly identified the fate of their nation with that of their woodlands A variety of groups soon mobilized the German forest as a national symbol though often in ways that suited their own social economic and political interests The German Forest is the first book length history of the development and contestation of the concept of German woodlands Jeffrey K Wilson challenges the dominant interpretation that German connections to nature were based in agrarian romanticism rather than efforts at modernization He explores a variety of conflicts over the symbol from demands on landowners for public access to woodlands to state attempts to integrate ethnic Slavs into German culture through forestry and radical nationalist visions of woodlands as a model for the German race Through impressive primary and archival research Wilson demonstrates that in addition to uniting Germans the forest as a national symbol could also serve as a vehicle for protest and strife
