The Worlds of Langston Hughes Vera M. Kutzinski, 2012-10-15 The poet Langston Hughes was a tireless world traveler and a prolific translator editor and marketer Translations of his own writings traveled even more widely than he did earning him adulation throughout Europe Asia and especially the Americas In The Worlds of Langston Hughes Vera Kutzinski contends that for writers who are part of the African diaspora translation is more than just a literary practice it is a fact of life and a way of thinking Focusing on Hughes's autobiographies translations of his poetry his own translations and the political lyrics that brought him to the attention of the infamous McCarthy Committee she shows that translating and being translated and often mistranslated are as vital to Hughes's own poetics as they are to understanding the historical network of cultural relations known as literary modernism As Kutzinski maps the trajectory of Hughes's writings across Europe and the Americas we see the remarkable extent to which the translations of his poetry were in conversation with the work of other modernist writers Kutzinski spotlights cities whose role as meeting places for modernists from all over the world has yet to be fully explored Madrid Havana Buenos Aires Mexico City and of course Harlem The result is a fresh look at Hughes not as a solitary author who wrote in a single language but as an international figure at the heart of a global intellectual and artistic formation

Improvisation and the Making of American Literary Modernism Rob Wallace, 2010-10-14 The Shape of Things to Come Greil Marcus, 2007-08-21 From the author of Mystery Train and Lipstick Traces an exhilarating and provocative investigation of the tangle of American identity America is a place and a story made up of exuberance and suspicion crime and liberation lynch mobs and escapes its greatest testaments are made of portents and warnings biblical allusions that lose all certainty in the American air It is this story of self invention and nationhood that Greil Marcus rediscovers beginning with John Winthrop's invocation of America as a city on the hill Lincoln's second inaugural address and Martin Luther King Jr's speech about his American dream Listening to these prophetic founding statements Marcus explores America's promise as a New Jerusalem and the nature of its covenant first with God and then with its own citizens In the nineteenth century this vision of the nation's story was told in public as part of common discourse to be fought over in plain speech and flights of gorgeous rhetoric Since then Marcus argues it has become cryptic a story told more in art than in politics He traces it across the continent and through time hearing the tale in the disparate voices of writers filmmakers performers and actors Philip Roth David Lynch David Thomas Allen Ginsberg Sheryl Lee and Bill Pullman In The Shape of Things to Come the future and the past merge in extraordinary and uncanny ways and Marcus proves once again that he is our most imaginative and original cultural critic
