Bernstein,2018-03-08 We live in a time when we are overwhelmed with talk and images of violence Whether on television the internet films or the video screen we can t escape representations of actual or fictional violence another murder another killing spree in a high school or movie theatre another action movie filled with images of violence Our age could well be called The Age of Violence because representations of real or imagined violence sometimes fused together are pervasive But what do we mean by violence What can violence achieve Are there limits to violence and if so what are they In this new book Richard Bernstein seeks to answer these questions by examining the work of five figures who have thought deeply about violence Carl Schmitt Walter Benjamin Hannah Arendt Frantz Fanon and Jan Assmann He shows that we have much to learn from their work about the meaning of violence in our times Through the critical examination of their writings he also brings out the limits of violence There are compelling reasons to commit ourselves to non violence and yet at the same time we have to acknowledge that there are exceptional circumstances in which violence can be justified Bernstein argues that there can be no general criteria for determining when violence is justified The only plausible way of dealing with this issue is to cultivate publics in which there is free and open discussion and in which individuals are committed to listen to one other when public debate withers there is nothing to prevent the triumph of murderous violence      The Lesson Compend George Henry Whitney,1873      Considerations on the Punishment of Death Charles Neate,1857      Womanizing Nietzsche Kelly Oliver,2016-02-11 In Womanizing Nietzsche Kelly Oliver uses an analysis of the position of woman in Nietzsche s texts to open onto the larger question of philosophy s relation to the feminine and the maternal Offering readings from Nietzsche Derrida Irigaray Kristeva Freud and Lacan Oliver builds an innovative foundation for an ontology of intersubjective relationships that suggests a new approach to ethics      Lessons in Criminology and Criminal Justice Matthew Robinson,2023-05-03 This book explores twenty five facts about crime and criminal justice that the author has learned in his quarter century of working in the fields of criminology and criminal justice
