Slow Anti-Americanism Edward Schatz, 2021-01-26 Negative views of the United States abound but we know too little about how such views affect politics Drawing on careful research on post Soviet Central Asia Edward Schatz argues that anti Americanism is best seen not as a rising tide that swamps or as a conflagration that overwhelms Rather America is a symbolic resource that resides quietly in the mundane but always has potential value for social and political mobilizers Using a wide range of evidence and a novel analytic framework Schatz considers how Islamist movements human rights activists and labor mobilizers across Central Asia avail themselves of this fact thus changing their ability to pursue their respective agendas By refocusing our analytic gaze away from high politics he affords us a clearer view of the slower moving partially occluded and socially embedded processes that ground how America becomes political In turn we gain a nuanced appreciation of the downstream effects of US foreign policy choices and a sober sense of the challenges posed by the politics of traveling images Most treatments of anti Americanism focus on politics in the realm of presidential elections and foreign policies By focusing instead on symbols Schatz lays bare how changing public attitudes shift social relations in politically significant ways and considers how changing symbolic depictions of the United States recombine the raw material available for social mobilizers Just like sediment traveling along waterways before reaching its final destination the raw material that constitutes symbolic America can travel among various social groups and can settle into place to form the basis of new social meanings Symbolic America Schatz shows us matters for politics in Central Asia and beyond

Rethinking the 'Coloured Revolutions' David Lane, Stephen White, 2013-09-13 The communist world was supposed to have had its revolution in 1989 But the demise of the Soviet Union came two years later at the end of 1991 and then perplexingly a series of irregular executive changes began to take place the following decade in countries that were already postcommunist The focus in this collection is the changes that took place in Serbia Georgia Ukraine and Kyrgyzstan between 2000 and 2005 that have together been called the coloured revolutions of no particular colour in Serbia but Rose in Georgia Orange in Ukraine and Tulip in Kyrgyzstan Apart from exploring political change in the coloured revolution countries themselves the contributors to this collection focus on countries that did not experience this kind of irregular executive change but which might otherwise be comparable Belarus and Kazakhstan among them and on reactions to democracy promotion in Russia and China Throughout an effort is made to avoid taking the coloured revolutions at face value however they may have been presented by local leaders and foreign governments with their own agendas and to place them within the wider literature of comparative politics This book was previously published as a special issue of Journal of Communist Studies and Transition Politics

The State as Investment Market Johan Engvall, 2016-09-07 Based on a detailed examination of Kyrgyzstan Johan Engvall goes well beyond the case of this single country to elaborate a broad theory of economic corruption in developing post Soviet states regionally as a rational form of investment market for political elites He reveals how would be officials invest in offices to obtain access to income streams associated with those offices Drawing on extensive fieldwork over an eight year period Engvall details how these systems work and the major implications this holds for political and economic development in the region Often identified and criticized simply as obstacles to development by scholars Engvall instead argues that these systems must be reinterpreted in the context of a standardized and entrenched method of organizing the state He also shows how private actors have been unsuccessful in buying preferential treatment directly from the state Instead public officials have become the predominant conduit to influencing policy process and monitoring the sale of protection property rights and other privatized public goods
