Hunting In North America:

Deer Hunting in North America David Feist, 2014-12-01 Deer hunting opportunities and wildlife management science are peaking simultaneously in many areas of North America Yet some game managers have fallen behind neglecting their white tailed deer resource Tired of the same State Game Lands nearest to your subdivision Have you thought about hunting another state or province Have you located other Wildlife Management Areas to try Or are you laying plans to purchase some of your own property Are you maximizing the private access opportunities you already have What do others do when they are as dissatisfied as you are with the state fish and game department s performance like in your area Are your game lands denuded of deer from over hunting with no timbering plans no plan of action to return the forest to health No game plan to make things better for the youth hunters learning the skill Nothing Have other hunters choked you out of your favorite spots Are conservation officers turning a blind eye to the slob redneck poachers ruining everything that is left of your family s favorite tradition deer hunting What are some options that will really work for me Am I willing to do a little homework or read up on things Do you mean my subscriptions to Field and Stream and Outdoor Life are not enough Don t you think it s time for something to change anything A new camp Maybe if you are sure since this past season that no deer were present in some of your favorite hotspots One way you knew You went dawn to dusk on a given hunting day without a cartridge fired anywhere within earshot Was the only REAL hunt the first two hours of Opening Day
