Conrad and the Ethics of Darwinism. The Challenges of Science. (Repr.) Allan Hunter, 1985 Conrad and Nature Lissa Schneider-Rebozo, Jeffrey Mathes McCarthy, John G. Peters, 2018-10-26 This collection of twelve original essays by established and emerging scholars seeks to explore these landscapes in Conrad's work and serves as a look into our own recent history at a pivotal time as we come to realize how our actions choices and even our mere presence directly impacts the natural world that delicately sustains us The text engages with work by Joseph Conrad storied British merchant marine and official British citizen as of 1886 Einstein's Wake Michael H. Whitworth, 2001-12-13 The revolution in literary form and aesthetic consciousness called modernism arose as the physical sciences were revising their most fundamental concepts space time matter and the concept of science itself The coincidence has often been remarked upon in general terms but rarely considered in detail Einstein's Wake argues that the interaction of modernism and the new physics is best understood by reference to the metaphors which structured these developments These metaphors widely disseminated in the popular science writing of the period provided a language with which modernist writers could articulate their responses to the experience of modernity Beginning with influential aspects of nineteenth century physics Einstein's Wake qualifies the notion that Einstein alone was responsible for literary relativity it goes on to examine the fine detail of his legacy in literary appropriations of scientific metaphors with particular attention to Virginia Woolf D H Lawrence Wyndham Lewis and T S Eliot Conrad and Impressionism John G. Peters, 2001-03-15 John Peters investigates the impact of Impressionism on Conrad and links this to his literary techniques as well as his philosophical and political views He investigates the sources and implications of Conrad's impressionism in order to argue for a consistent link between his literary technique, philosophical presuppositions and socio-political views

The Shape of Fear Susan Jennifer Navarette, 2021-05-11 During the last decades of the nineteenth century Charles Darwin, Thomas Henry Huxley, Walter Pater and others changed the nature of thought concerning the human body and the physical environment that had shaped it. In response, the 1890s saw the publication of a series of remarkable literary works that had their genesis in the intense scientific and aesthetic activity of those preceding decades: texts that emphasized themes of degeneration and were themselves stylistically decompositional with language both a surrogate for physical deformity and a source of anxiety. Susan J. Navarette examines the ways in which scientific and cultural concerns of late nineteenth-century England are coded in the horror literature of the period. By contextualizing the structural, stylistic and thematic systems developed by writers seeking to reenact textually the entropic forces they perceived in the natural world, Navarette reconstructs the late Victorian mentality. She analyzes aesthetic responses to trends in contemporary science and explores horror writers' use of scientific methodologies to support their perception that a long-awaited period of cultural decline had begun. In her analysis of the classics Turn of the Screw and Heart of Darkness, Navarette shows how James and Conrad made artistic use of earlier scientific readings of the body. She also considers works by lesser-known authors: Walter de la Mare, Vernon Lee and Arthur Machen, who produced fin de siècle stories that took the form of hybrid literary monstrosities. To underscore the fascination with bodily decay and deformation that these writers explored, The Shape of Fear is enhanced with prints and line drawings by Victor Hugo, James Ensor and other artists of the day. This elegantly written book formulates a new canon of late Victorian fiction that will intrigue scholars of literature and cultural history.

Literature After Darwin V. Richter, 2010-12-14 What makes us human? Where is the limit between human and animal? These are questions that haunt post-Darwinian literature. Covering fiction from Kipling to Kafka, this study offers a historically embedded analysis of anthropological anxiety in the period between the publication of the Origin of Species and the beginning of the Second World War.

The Early Evolutionary Imagination Emelie Jonsson, 2021-09-29 Darwinian evolution is an imaginative problem that has been passed down to us unsolved. It is our most powerful explanation of humanity's place in nature, but it is also more cognitively demanding and less emotionally satisfying than any myth. From the publication of the Origin of Species in 1859, evolution has pushed our capacity for storytelling into overdrive, sparking fairy tales, adventure stories, political allegories, utopias, dystopias, social realist novels and existential meditations. Though this influence on literature has been widely studied, it has not been explained psychologically. This book argues for the adaptive function of storytelling, integrates traditional humanist scholarship with current knowledge about the evolved and adapted human mind, and calls for literary scholars to reframe their interpretation of the first authors who responded to Darwin.

Hardy, Conrad and the Senses Epstein, Hugh Epstein, 2019-11-12 Explores scenic realism in the major novels of Thomas Hardy and Joseph Conrad. Offers the first book length study of connections between these two major authors bringing new approaches to bear on often taught works Provides an understanding of impressionist styles of writing that is drawn from contemporary empirical science Tells a progressive chronological story of both authors use of the senses in their fiction Argues for a distinctive place for Hardy and Conrad in late Victorian fiction which challenges the narrative of a modernist rupture with Victorian realism Supported by wide reading in nineteenth century science and letters and comprehensive knowledge of twentieth century criticism of the two novelists This book reads the highly descriptive impressionist writings of Hardy and Conrad together in the light of a shared attention to sight and sound With a focus on nature and the environment Hugh Epstein analyses thirteen of these powerful works in the historical company of contemporary discussions in Victorian science He takes them beyond their Victorian and Modernist labels to show how vivid and urgent these novels are for the modern reader

The Birth of Intertextuality Scarlett Baron, 2019-11-01 Why was the term intertextuality coined Why did its first theorists feel the need to replace or complement those terms of quotation allusion echo reference influence imitation parody pastiche among others which had previously seemed adequate and sufficient to the description of literary relations Why especially in view of the fact that it is still met with resistance did the new concept achieve such popularity so fast Why has it retained its currency in spite of its inherent paradoxes Since 1966 when Kristeva defined every text as a mosaic of quotations intertextuality has become an all pervasive catchword in literature and other humanities departments yet the notion as commonly used remains nebulous to the point of meaninglessness This book seeks to shed light on this thought provoking but treacherously polyvalent concept by tracing the theory's core ideas and emblematic images to paradigm shifts in the fields of science philosophy psychoanalysis and linguistics focusing on the shaping roles of Darwin Nietzsche Freud Saussure and Bakhtin In so doing it elucidates the meaning of one of the most frequently used terms in contemporary criticism thereby providing a much needed foundation for clearer discussions of literary relations across the discipline and beyond

The Routledge Research Companion to Nineteenth-Century British Literature and Science John Holmes, Sharon Ruston, 2017-05-18 Tracing the continuities and trends in the complex relationship between literature and science in the long nineteenth century this companion provides scholars with a comprehensive authoritative and up to date foundation for research in this field In intellectual material and social terms the transformation undergone by Western culture over the period was unprecedented Many of these changes were grounded in the growth of science Yet science was not a cultural monolith then any more than it is now and its development was shaped by competing world views To cover the full range of literary engagements with science in the nineteenth century this companion consists of twenty seven chapters by experts in the field which explore crucial social and intellectual contexts for the interactions between literature and science how science affected different genres of writing and the importance of individual scientific disciplines and concepts within literary culture Each chapter has its own extensive bibliography The volume as a whole is rounded out with a synoptic introduction by the editors and an afterword by the eminent historian of nineteenth century science Bernard Lightman Under Conrad's Eyes Michael John DiSanto, 2009 An innovative account of Joseph Conrad's engagement with nineteenth century thought The Reception of Darwinian Evolution in Britain, 1859-1909 Martin Hewitt, 2024-10-20 The Reception of Darwinian Evolution in Britain 1859 1909 Darwinism's Generations uses the impact of Charles Darwin's On the Origin of Species 1859 in the 50 years after its publication to demonstrate the effectiveness of a generational framework for understanding the cultural and intellectual history of Britain in the nineteenth century It challenges conventional notions of the Darwinian Revolution by examining how people from across all sections of society actually responded to Darwin's writings Drawing on the opinions and interventions of over 2 000 Victorians drawn from an exceptionally wide range of archival and printed sources it argues that the spread of Darwinian belief was slower more complicated more stratified by age and ultimately shaped far more powerfully by divergent generational responses than has previously been recognised In doing so it makes a number of important contributions It offers by far the richest and most comprehensive account to date of how contemporaries came to terms with the intellectual and emotional shocks of evolutionary theory It makes a compelling case for taking proper account of age as a fundamental historical dynamic and for the powerful generational patternings of the effects that age produced It demonstrates the extent to which the most common sub periodisation of the Victorian period are best understood not merely as constituted by the exigencies of events but are also formed by the shifting balance generational influence Taken together these insights present a significant challenge to the ways historians currently approach the task of describing the nature and experience of historical change and have fundamental implications for our current conceptions of the shape and pace of historical time
