Globalization in English Studies Maria Giorgieva, Allan

James, 2010-02-19. Globalization, the concept used to account for the multitude of linkages, interconnections, and interdependences that currently transcend territorial and sociocultural boundaries in the world, has been in the centre of continual controversy over its meaning, scope, intensity, and social significance for post-modern societies. However, whether considered from the narrow angle of current socio-economic developments or from the broad perspective of evolutionary processes straddling all spheres of life, globalization is generally acknowledged to refer to a complex set of processes of modernization, technologization, liberalization, and integration operationalized through language and in a language shared by all those involved. For a number of geo-historical, socio-political, economic, and technological reasons, the language that has firmly established itself as the language of international communication is English. As a result, Global English takes a primary place in discussions of the effect of globalization on world societies and culture. The volume Globalization in English Studies addresses the issue of how globalization impacts upon culture, literature, language, communication, and language learning and use policies, which are taken to constitute the multiplex disciplinary space of English Studies. Written by authors with different language, cultural, and theoretical backgrounds, this collection of eleven chapters throws light on how global and local entities are subtly intertwined, refashioned, and rescaled in different geo-political and sociocultural contexts. The book is divided into four parts. The first part, Globalization in Culture, dwells upon the effects of globalization in particular cultural domains and the institutional attempts in some countries at reducing its negative consequences for local practices. The second part, Globalization in Literature, examines the impact of global integration processes on social life. In particular, it focuses on new developments as the hybridization and technologization of societies that tend to wipe out borders traditionally taken as reference points in building identity and a sense of belonging. The third part, Globalization in Language Communication, focuses on intercultural communication and the opportunities different multi-modal settings offer for the realisation of intertextuality and interdiscursivity. Of particular interest is how local people select appropriate and creatively utilize cultural entities designed for global consumption to make them appear as their own. The last part, Global English and English Language Teaching Learning Policy, approaches the issue from a pedagogical perspective and examines the changes that globalization has caused for learners' learning environments and ways of speaking. Ranging over a variety of domains subsumed within English Studies, this collection of studies can serve as a good base for the cross-disciplinary synergy of ideas.
