THE SECOND REPORT ON THE STATE OF THE WORLD'S ANIMAL GENETIC RESOURCES FOR FOOD AND AGRICULTURE Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-06-06 Animal genetic resource diversity underpins the supply livestock products and services across a wide range of production environments It promotes resilience and serves as a basis for adapting livestock management to changing conditions It is vital to livelihoods of many of the world's poor people It can contribute to the delivery of ecosystem services such as landscape management and the maintenance of wildlife habitats However it is often undervalued underused and under threat This report updates the global assessment provided in the first report on The State of the World's Animal Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture published in 2007 It focuses particularly on changes that have occurred during the period since the first report was published It serves as a basis for a review and potential update of the Global Plan of Action for Animal Genetic Resources which since 2007 has provided an agreed international framework for the management of livestock biodiversity Drawing on 129 country reports it presents an analysis of the state of livestock diversity the influence of livestock sector trends on the management of animal genetic resources the state of capacity to manage animal genetic resources including legal and policy frameworks and the state of the art in tools and methods for characterization valuation use development and conservation

Innovations in cryoconservation of animal genetic resources Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, Boes, J, Boettcher, P, Honkatukia, M, 2023-01-17 The livestock sector faces a range of challenges including climate change emerging diseases competition for natural resources and evolving demand for animal source foods which is increasing globally especially in developing countries Genetic diversity of livestock is a key resource for allowing livestock keepers to address these challenges but this diversity has been in a state of decline The diminishing genetic diversity thus represents yet another obstacle for sustainable livestock production Cryoconservation i.e. ex situ in vitro conservation of genetic resources through gene banking provides one of the most powerful tools governments and other stakeholders have to manage genetic diversity in both the short and long term and thereby provide future generations with the tools to meet the challenges ahead Gene banking genetic resources fits within the context of the Global

Plan of Action for Animal Genetic Resources which was developed and adopted by FAO Member Nations Specifically Strategic Priority 9 of the Global Plan of Action is Establish or strengthen ex situ conservation programmes and Strategic Priority 11 urges countries to Develop approaches and technical standards for conservation To assist countries in the implementation the Global Plan of Action FAO worked with experts from around the world to prepare technical guidelines In 2012 FAO published FAO Guidelines on Cryoconservation of animal genetic resources Gene banking is a long term effort that needs to be viewed in terms of decades rather than years as demonstrated by similar systems for agricultural crops The responsibility for establishing such resources lies squarely within governments roles of providing public goods and food security Gene banking of animal genetic resources is a technology intense undertaking and the associated technologies are in a continual state of research and development The livestock sector also continues to evolve rapidly Since the development and release of the previous guidelines numerous changes have taken place Critical among these is a greater appreciation of the opportunities for actively utilizing cryopreserved material to enhance management of in vivo populations rather than as simply an insurance policy to protect breeds against extinction This key development has led to further changes in gene bank management First interaction with users of the stored material has increased This in turn has created a need to involve stakeholders more closely in the management of genetic collections and to better monitor and document the processes of gene banking to ensure quality management Agrindex, 1994 Encyclopedia of Animal Science - (Two-Volume Set) Wilson G. Lama, Dhiman Burman, Uttam Kumar Mandal, Sukanta Kumar Sarangi, H.S. Sen, 2022-08-09

Coastal areas are commonly defined as the interface or transition areas between land and sea including large inland lakes. Overall about 50-70 % of the global population live within 100 km of the coastline covering only about 4 % of earth's land, thereby drawing heavily on coastal and marine habitats for food, building sites, transportation, recreational areas, and waste disposal. The people of these zones depend mainly on low productive agriculture due to several constraints such as prolonged water logging and drainage congestion in predominantly low lying areas with heavy soils during the wet season; preponderance of saline and acid sulphate soils; scarcity of good quality irrigation water particularly in the dry season; seawater intrusion into adjoining lands and water pollution due to eutrophication and others affecting the aquatic habitats etc. Carbon sequestration in coastal areas such as marshes, lagoons etc. has significant influence on soil quality and the carbon pool in soils as well as their impacts on the environment. Over and above these, the coastal areas are prone to disasters due to climate change leading to colossal loss of lives and properties in many areas. Forestry and mangrove dynamics, in particular because of their continuing diminishing nature, are also subjects of interest affecting the ecology of coastal zones requiring appropriate attention. The international symposium held in this context on Transforming Coastal Zones for Sustainable Food and Income Security in virtual mode in March 2021 offered scope to present and discuss various thematic areas by eminent scientists from all over the world. The proceedings of selected papers presented reflect cross sectoral views of the areas highlighting wherever necessary a fusion of technologies with the ultimate target to suggest livelihood security and sustainable development for the sensitive coastal zones. The book intends to share the knowledge with researchers, academicians and various other stakeholders to address the complex problems of coastal regions: production constraints, social, economic, technical and environmental issues, to draw out strategies for resilient agricultural technologies and improving livelihood security in coastal agro ecosystems.
