I Am Running Home:

Running Home Katie Arnold, 2020-09-08 In the tradition of Wild and H Is for Hawk an Outside magazine writer tells her story of fathers and daughters grief and renewal adventure and obsession and the power of running to change your life NAMED ONE OF THE BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR BY REAL SIMPLE I m running to forget and to remember For more than a decade Katie Arnold chased adventure around the world reporting on extreme athletes who performed outlandish feats walking high lines a thousand feet off the ground without a harness or running one hundred miles through the night She wrote her stories by living them until eventually life on the thin edge of risk began to seem normal After she married Katie and her husband vowed to raise their daughters to be adventurous too in the mountains and canyons of New Mexico But when her father died of cancer she was forced to confront her own mortality His death was cataclysmic unleashing a perfect storm of grief and anxiety She and her father an enigmatic photographer for National Geographic had always been kindred spirits He introduced her to the outdoors and took her camping and on bicycle trips and down rivers and taught her to find solace and courage in the natural world And it was he who encouraged her to run her first race when she was seven years old Now nearly paralyzed by fear and terrified she was dying too she turned to the thing that had always made her feel most alive running Over the course of three tumultuous years she ran alone through the wilderness logging longer and longer distances first a 50 kilometer ultramarathon then 50 miles then 100 kilometers She ran to heal her grief to outpace her worry that she wouldn't live to raise her own daughters She ran to find strength in her weakness She ran to remember and to forget She ran to live Ultrarunning tests the limits of human endurance over seemingly inhuman distances and as she clocked miles across mesas and mountains Katie learned to tolerate pain and discomfort and face her fears of uncertainty vulnerability and even death itself As she ran she found herself peeling back the layers of her relationship with her father discovering that much of what she thought she knew about him and her own past was wrong Running Home is a memoir about the stories we tell ourselves to make sense of our world the stories that hold us back and the ones that set us free Mesmerizing transcendent and deeply exhilarating it is a book for anyone who has been knocked over by life or feels the pull of something bigger and wilder within themselves A beautiful work of searching remembrance and searing honesty Katie Arnold is as gifted on the page as she is on the trail Running Home will soon join such classics as Born to Run and Ultramarathon Man as quintessential reading of the genre Hampton Sides author of On Desperate Ground and Ghost Soldiers of secrets and lies Ronan McAllister is forced into retirement from the CIA and returns to his hometown While his family welcomes him home with open arms he struggles to leave his past behind through the thick fog of PTSD Payson Roberts is mostly content with her quiet life in the quaint town of Seaview Ever the optimist she is determined to find the one but her fruitless search is starting to wear down her eternally sunny demeanor As a favor to her best friend and against her better judgment she agrees to hire her friend's irritable jackass of a brother to help out around her beloved antique shop Incendiary sparks fly Ronan pushes the fairy eyed Payson away with insults and offense to save her from himself But can Ronan protect Payson from the dangers of his past Get lost and fall in love again in the small town of Seaview Maine Romance and international espionage ignite in this captivating and enchanting contemporary romance Yes you can read this as a standalone again and again if desired

I Am Ayah: The Way Home Donna Hill, 2023-05-23 A rich and tender story of family home and love Ms Magazine Set amid Sag Harbor's vibrant African American history bestselling author Donna Hill weaves a stunningly rich story about finding the way home no matter how long the journey takes Alessandra Fleming has spent most of her life running from her past Her budding photography career her life in Manhattan all serve to distract from the secrets and guilt she's never been able to face Then the call Her estranged father is in the hospital and Alessandra must return home to Sag Harbor crumbling the first wall between her past and her present For some coming home is a relief For Alessandra it's a reminder of the family she's lost of the time she'll never regain But the answers the secrets of her family are hidden in the house waiting for her And the only one who may be able to help her uncover them is her father's neighbor Zach who brings with him an attraction that's intense and instantaneous yet oddly familiar Now Alessandra is being pulled back not only into her own complex family history but into the richly documented lives of four extraordinary women Generations touched by tragedy and triumph despair and hope And it's in these aching echoes of the past that Alessandra's own story her mistakes and her capacity to love will take shape guiding her to the life she's meant to live and the extraordinary person she will become

Running Home Brenda Shaw, 2019-03-26 Denise is an English teenager and a member of the Jewish minority Her mother died when she was a baby Running Home describes her journey to adulthood taking her through dysfunctional family relationships confrontations with anti-Semitism and the discovery of the tensions and contradictions of the modern State of Israel Those who help her on her path include her grandmother who was a refugee from Nazi Germany and a compassionate English Pakistani Denise's father and stepmother are observant Jews who are exasperated by her challenges to their values At sixteen Denise is itching to break loose from the suffocating affluence of her London home and is helped by her doting grandmother to escape to a Sixth Form Boarding College in the beautiful countryside of the North of England But before Denise finally leaves home she discovers a startling secret about her mother's death that will eventually alter the course of her life She thrives at her new school until anti-Semitism and racism pollute the atmosphere At University she hides her true identity until her boyfriend reveals his own anti-Semitic views Deciding to visit Israel Denise finds out more about her mother She falls in love with the country and a reserve soldier but disaster strikes when he is seriously wounded in a military clash Denise returns to England confused and disillusioned She meets Imran an English Pakistani whose support and wisdom helps her when her father falls seriously ill and asks for her help What will the future hold

Causes and Coincidences David Owens,1992-08-28 In an important departure from theories of causation David Owens proposes that coincidences have no causes and that a cause is something which ensures that its effects are no coincidence In Causes and Coincidences he elucidates the idea of a coincidence as an event which can be analysed into constituent events the nomological antecedents of which are independent of each other He also suggests that causal facts can be analysed in terms of non causal facts including relations of necessity Thus causation is defined in terms of coincidence and coincidence without reference to causation David Owens challenges the ideas associated with Hume Davidson and Lewis constructing a theory which distinguishes nomological necessity and sufficiency from their logical counterparts He is able to offer novel solutions to the major problems of causation including the direction of causation the logical form of causal statements the distinction between causal connections and logical connections and the relationship between psychological and physical causation Hearings, Reports and Prints of the Senate Committee on Human Resources United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Human Resources. Subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research,1978 Running from Home Rita B. Ross,2009-02-15 Running from Home chronicles Rita's flight from the Nazis as it was perceived by a young child The sense of bewilderment loss of home and suffering from hunger and cold create an indelible mark upon her mind and do not leave when she eventually comes to America Raised in different cultures she never feels at home but is always the outsider trying to reconcile her old life and experiences with her new surroundings Her youth and adolescence are assaulted by the demons that have been imprinted on her young brain Furthermore Rita's father suffers from his own demons financial insecurity disenfranchisement and constant poverty serve to reestablish her old fears and sense of loss For Rita the war is not over when the peace treaties have been signed For more information please see www.ritabross.com Orphans Ben Tanzer,2013-11-01 With Orphans Ben Tanzer continues his ongoing literary survey of the twenty first century male psyche yet does so with a newfound twist contemporary themes set in a world that is anything but In this dystopian tale of a future Chicago workers are sent off to sell property on Mars to those who can afford to leave leaving what's left to those who have little choice but to make do with what's left behind burnt out neighborhoods black helicopters policing the streets flash mobs

the unemployed in their scruffy suits robots taking the few jobs that remain and clones who replace those workers who do find work so that a modicum of family stability can be maintained It is a story about the impact of work on family How work warps our best intentions And how everything we think we know about ourselves looks different during a recession This idea is writ large in the world of Orphans where recession is all we know work is only available to the lucky few and this lucky few not only need to fear being replaced on the job but in their homes and beds It is also a story about drugs surfing punk music lost youth parenting sex pop culture as vernacular and a conscious intersection of Death of a Salesman or Glengarry Glen Ross with the Martian Chronicles Looking to the genre of science fiction has allowed Tanzer to produce something new and fresh expanding both his literary horizons and the potential market for his work Tanzer also looks to the story of Bartleby the Scrivener with Orphans and the question of what are we allowed as workers and expected to be or do when work is fraught with desperation Ultimately Orphans is intended to be a contemporary story about manhood and what it means in today's world told from the perspective of work and family and how any of us manage the parameters that family and work produce but it's a story told in a futuristic world where our greatest fears are in fact already realized because there isn't enough of anything and we are all too easily replaced
