Loggers Of The Bc Coast:

Loggers of the BC Coast Hans Knapp, 2005 A true account of a working lifetime spent in the woods of coastal BC Filled with life and death stories and larger than life characters Loggers of the B C Coast is a blend of history and autobiography set against the primitive background of post war logging camps and populated by a bygone breed of crude philosophical charming and inveterately fascinating men The author came to British Columbia in 1951 to shore up his family s war blasted fortunes and to follow a childhood dream His memories of forty one years in the woods are crisp and clear the descriptions of death and adversity taut and visceral At the heart of the book are the numerous camp dwellers themselves Men with names like Sidewinder Slippery Ha Ha Harry and Whispering Swede leap out from every page and demand to be remembered For those who enjoy language the glossary of logging terms alone is worth the price of admission The Future of the Small

Ethnohistory Keith Thor Carlson, John Sutton Lutz, David M. Schaepe, Naxaxalhts'i - Albert "Sonny" McHalsie, 2018-04-20 Towards a New Ethnohistory engages respectfully in cross cultural dialogue and interdisciplinary methods to co create with Indigenous people a new decolonized ethnohistory This new ethnohistory reflects Indigenous ways of knowing and is a direct response to critiques of scholars who have for too long foisted their own research agendas onto Indigenous communities Community engaged scholarship invites members of the Indigenous community themselves to identify the research questions host the researchers while they conduct the research and participate meaningfully in the analysis of the researchers findings The historical research topics chosen by the St l community leaders and knowledge keepers for the contributors to this collection range from the intimate and personal to the broad and collective But what principally distinguishes the analyses is the way settler colonialism is positioned as something that unfolds in sometimes unexpected ways within St l history as opposed to the other way around This collection presents the best work to come out of the world s only graduate level humanities based ethnohistory field school The blending of methodologies and approaches from the humanities and social sciences is a model of twenty first century interdisciplinarity The Inverted Pyramid Bertrand W. Sinclair, 1924 Inverted Pyramid explores Canada s drift during WWI from a world of production to one based on finance with all the attendant problems we are still enduring today The novel offers a colourful account of British Columbia during this time through the history of two brothers Rod and Grove Norquay who belong to an old BC family Rod hopes to build on the family s past success in forestry but Grove the older brother takes the family s assets and invests them in finance with disastrous consequences Even as the world declines into a post war depression Rod is forced to liquidate much of his family s timber holdings but he remains hopeful that he and family working with their own hands will be able to make a good life for themselves even as the rest of the world totters into the horrors of modernity Western Canada Lumberman , 1925

The inverted pyramid Bertrand W. Sinclair, 2025-03-02 In The Inverted Pyramid Bertrand W Sinclair masterfully

explores the complexities of human emotion and societal structures through an intricate narrative woven with rich symbolism. The novel employs a modernist literary style marked by its innovative structure and deep psychological insights reminiscent of the works of contemporaries like Virginia Woolf and James Joyce. Sinclair artfully deconstructs the traditional narrative arc instead opting for an inverted model that mirrors the chaotic nature of characters' lives reflecting the disorientation of early 20th century society as it grapples with the rapidly changing world around it. Bertrand W Sinclair a prominent figure in Canadian literature draws on his diverse experiences as a journalist, novelist and playwright. His firsthand observations of societal struggles and the human condition ignite the themes explored in this novel marrying his understanding of the zeitgeist with a profound empathy for his characters. Sinclair's unique perspective forged through personal and societal trials imbues The Inverted Pyramid with a relatable authenticity inviting readers to unpack their own emotional landscapes. This thought provoking novel is not only a testament to Sinclair's literary prowess but also a compelling invitation for readers to introspect. For those intrigued by the intersections of narrative form and psychological depth The Inverted Pyramid promises to challenge conventional storytelling while illuminating the intricate dance of life and identity.

, 1926 West Coast Lumberman, 1949 Saltwater City Paul Yee, 2009-12-01 Saltwater City pays tribute to those who went through the hard times to those who swallowed their pride to those who were powerless and humiliated but who still carried on. They all had faith that things would be better for future generations. They have been proven correct. Canada's first Chinese arrived in British Columbia in 1858 from California. Almost all were merchants, peasants and laborers and almost all from eight rural counties in the Pearl River delta in what is now Guangdong province. They came in search of gold and better fortune escaping the rebellions, flood and drought of their homeland. By 1863 over 4 000 Chinese lived in B.C. filling jobs shunned by whites: miners, road builders, teamsters, laundry men, restaurateurs, domestic servants and cannery workers. Between 1881 and 1885 thousands more arrived, most imported to build the transcontinental railway. They were to create in Vancouver Canada's largest and most dynamic Chinese Community known to its original inhabitants as Saltwater City.

American Lumberman, 1904 Flexible Crossroads Roger Hayter, 2011-11-01 British Columbia's forest economy is at a crucial crossroads. Its survival, Roger Hayter argues, rests on its ability to remain flexible and open to innovation, a future by no means assured given recent policy initiatives and the current contested nature of British Columbia's forests. Flexible Crossroads looks at the contemporary restructuring of British Columbia's forest economy demonstrating how both resource dynamics, the transition from old growth to managed forests and industrial dynamics, changing technology and global market forces have shaped this transformation. Conceptually the restructuring is portrayed as a shift from a commodity based cost minimizing production system (Fordism) to a more product differentiated value maximizing production system informed by the imperative of flexibility. The first part of the book provides global and historical perspectives by situating British Columbia's forest economy within the wider context of global industrialization the history of resource dynamics and the current shift from Fordist to more flexible systems of production In the second part Hayter assesses the extent to which British Columbia's forest economy is enacting this shift by focusing on factors such as foreign ownership the strategies and structure of MacMillan Bloedel the role of small firms trade relations employment and labour relations forest community development environmentalism and resource use and innovation policy Flexible Crossroads will appeal to geographers political economists and forestry professionals as well as to students of British Columbia's economy and forest economies generally Capital and Labour in the British Columbia Forest Industry, 1934-74 Gordon Hak, 2011-11-01 The history of British Columbia's economy in the twentieth century is inextricably bound to the development of the forest industry In this comprehensive study Gordon Hak approaches the forest industry from the perspectives of workers and employers examining the two institutions that structured the relationship during the Fordist era the companies and the unions He relates daily routines of production and profit making to broader forces of unionism business ideology ecological protest technological change and corporate concentration The struggle of the small business sector to survive in the face of corporate growth the history of the industry on the Coast and in the Interior the transformations in capital labour relations during the period government forest policy and the forest industry's encounter with the emerging environmental movement are all considered in this eloquent analysis

Canada Lumberman and Woodworker, 1914 Canadian Forest Industries, 2006 Sustaining the Forests of the Pacific Coast Debra Salazar, Donald K. Alper, 2011-11-01 Forests define the Pacific Coast in many ways Culturally they are part of the traditions of the First Nations economically they have sustained an industry that has created settlements and wealth throughout the area In the last twenty years the forests have become the subject of increasing conflict as economic interests clash with changing social and political values The war in the woods has escalated hardening battle lines and polarizing forest politics In this thoughtful collection of essays edited by Debra J Salazar and Donald K Alper forest policy in the U S Pacific Northwest and British Columbia is examined in a binational context While US and Canadian forest policy and forest management approaches differ the two countries face similar challenges and conflicts Contributors discuss the evolution of forest exploitation the response of timber companies to U S federal environmental regulations sovereignty for First Nations communities and the reshaping of the political economy of forests by global forces on both sides of the border Groups usually ignored in the forest policy debate such as First Nations peoples workers in the emerging non forest economy and citizen activists are also given voice in this fascinating compilation The contributors to Sustaining the Forests of the Pacific Coast offer new perspectives that recognize the complexity of the issues and the diversity of interests in forest politics A valuable contribution to the ongoing debate over forest policy on both sides of the Canada U S border these essays analyze the challenges facing forest policy makers and open the discussion up to those whose voices have not been heard before
