Carlson, Edward J. Imwinkelried, Julie Seaman, Erica Beecher-Monas, 2018-08 Judge Calabresi has pointed out that this is the Age of Statutes and some commentators have asserted that trial by jury is becoming trial by expert Therefore competent attorneys must be adept at working with scientific material and at interpreting statutes The Eighth Edition of this casebook enables students to learn how to use materials generated by scientific researchers and to develop statutory interpretation skills The authors emphasize scientific problems with repeated references to Daubert and its progeny Evidentiary doctrine coverage is reduced to allow for deeper treatment of the science behind much of the evidence presented in modern trials Throughout the text the Eighth Edition stresses statutory construction skills and at appropriate points it discusses the contrast between the textualist and legal process schools of jurisprudence all while bringing students up to date on significant recent developments such as the 2017 amendments to the Federal Rules of Evidence and the 2016 forensic science report of the President's Council of Advisors on Science and Technology Evidence: Teaching Materials for an Age of Science and Statutes (with Federal Rules of Evidence Appendix) Ronald Carlson, Edward Imwinkelried, Cortney Lollar, 2023-08-31 This coursebook employs a state of the art approach to the problem method of teaching Evidence The beginning of the text sets out two case files one civil and one criminal All of the problems in the text are based on those files The student does not waste time learning a new fact situation to analyze every problem and the use of the case files throughout the course simulates the real world experience of gaining increasingly sophisticated insights into a fact pattern as the student works with the files for months One emphasis of the text is statutory construction since this is the Age of Statutes Chapter Two includes an excerpt from an article by two leading jurisprudence scholars Professors Eskridge and Frickey and introduces the ongoing debate over the proper approach to the construction of the Federal Rules of Evidence In the following chapters the coursebook repeatedly calls on the student to carefully parse text consider context and assess the weight of extrinsic legislative materials As a takeaway from the course the student should have an enhanced understanding of the importance of statutory construction and increased interpretive skill A second emphasis is the use of empirical data to assess expert methodologies and the underlying psychological assumptions of evidentiary doctrines One estimate is that today in an average trial in a court of general jurisdiction four experts take the witness stand Chapter One includes an excerpt from the classic text Inside the Jury discussing the analysis of empirical data Chapter Twelve includes a list of considerations that courts should weigh in evaluating a data set As another takeaway from the course the student should have a greater comfort level working with empirical data under Daubert and more broadly in using data to critique evidentiary doctrines Science and Materials, Level II H. A. Tyler, 1978 Materials science and technology, 1978
