Internship, Co-op and Entry-level Programs ,2005 For minority law students or attorneys no factor is more important in deciding where to work than the quality of a firm s diversity program is central to their decision      Major Trade-Offs Corey Moss-Pech,2025-05-06 An eye opening look at the relationship between students majors and their entry level jobs Humanities majors are used to answering the question So what are you going to do with that degree The common misconception is that students in humanities programs don t learn any useful skills for the real world In Major Trade Offs sociologist Corey Moss Pech argues that not only do humanities majors learn real world skills but they actually use them when they graduate Despite this discrepancy graduates with so called practical degrees like business and engineering are much more likely to find employment and they earn higher salaries Why do we belittle a liberal arts education despite the valuable skills that students acquire during their studies Major Trade Offs addresses this question by following students from different majors as they enter the workforce To understand the relationship between majors and entry level jobs Moss Pech conducted nearly 200 interviews with roughly ninety students from four majors at a large Midwestern university engineering business English and communications He follows these students through their senior years chronicling their internships and the support their universities provide in helping them pursue their career paths He found that graduates from practical majors entered the labor market successfully typically through structured internship programs However many ended up in entry level jobs that while well paid were largely clerical and didn't necessarily require a degree to perform On the other hand liberal arts majors rarely accessed structured internships and were largely left to carve out their own paths but did use their degree skills once they secured a job These results challenge popular myths about the marketability of these different majors and offer a new vision for the future of higher education Liberal arts skills are essential in the labor market and yet educators and policymakers still push resources into the practical arts perpetuating the myth that those majors are more valuable while depriving students of a well rounded education and leaving them no better prepared for the workforce than liberal arts students Of interest to students educators and employers Major Trade Offs calls on colleges and universities to advocate for liberal arts majors leveling the playing field for students as they plan for entry level work
