Career Andrew Pollard,1999-06-17 This text is the second part of a seven year ethnography of individual pupils from the ages of four to eleven in an English primary school It presents a sociological analysis of children coping with the social worlds of home playground and classroom over the seven years of a primary school career The study provides holistic insights into the biographies of four children during their primary school years and the case studies give prominence to the voices and perspectives of parents children and teachers interacting over time The reader is invited to engage personally with these accounts and is guided as the book progresses to an overall analysis of the significance of social relationships and learning processes on the childrens s career trajectories Primary Special Needs and the National Curriculum Ann

Lewis,2002-01-04 This new edition of Ann Lewis s widely acclaimed text has been substantially revised and updated to take into account the recent revisions to the National Curriculum and the guidance of the Code of Practice It provides an analysis of the issues and practicalities of implementing the National Curriculum at primary school level an exploration of the main trends concerning the education of children with learning difficulties guidelines on safeguarding a broad curriculum assessing children s learning and helping all children gain access to the National Curriculum Related issues such as the grouping of children the role of the special needs coordinator resources record keeping and the legal position are also examined These areas are explored in the light of classroom practice evidence about the impact of the National Curriculum to date and wider research evidence and policy analysis Testing and Assessment Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Children, Schools and Families Committee,2008 A certain amount of national testing at key points in a child s school career is necessary in order to provide a standardised means of measuring educational attainment But in recent years the Government has emphasised central control of the education system through testing and associated targets and performance tables placing test results in a new and more complex context with wide ranging consequences National test results are used for a wide variety of purposes across many different levels national local institutional and individual Is the current national testing system a valid means by which to achieve these purposes The Committee concludes that in some cases it is not In particular the use of national test results for the purpose of school accountability has resulted in some schools emphasising the maximisation of test results at the expense of a more rounded education for their pupils A variety of classroom practices aimed at improving test results has distorted the education of some children which may leave them unprepared for higher education and employment Teaching to the test and narrowing of the taught curriculum are widespread phenomena in schools resulting in a disproportionate focus on the core subjects of English mathematics and science The Government s proposals for the new single level tests and the new emphasis on the personalised approach to learning may have some positive effects But there is a need for structural modification of the current approach The Committee concludes that the national testing system should be reformed to decouple these multiple purposes in such a way as to remove from schools the imperative to pursue test results at all costs On the 14 19 diplomas the Committee notes that
