Ickes,2012-12-06 Several years ago two of my colleagues and I had the opportunity to interview Fritz Heider perhaps the most influential theorist in the field of social psychology Harvey Ickes Kidd 1976 During our interview Heider affirmed a belief that had guided his career since the 1920s the belief that the study of human relationships is the most important task in which social scientists can engage Although many social scientists would profess to share this belief it is nonetheless true that the study of human relationships has been one of the most neglected tasks in the history of the social sciences including psychology What Heider found in the 1920s that most psychologists acknowledged the importance of studying human relationships but at the same time tended to focus their own research on more tractable topics such as memory and cognition is still very much evident in the 1980s Even within the more specific domain of social psychology a majority of researchers still choose to address those hybrid topics social cognition social categorization and stereotyping person memory etc that relate most directly to traditional areas of psychological research Still other researchers while choosing to study such important interpersonal phenomena as altruism aggression conflict and interpersonal attraction tend to focus so exclusively on these isolated and abstracted phenomena that they fail to provide a more inclusive view of the relationships in which these phenomena occur Dyadic Decision Making David Brinberg,James Jaccard,2012-12-06 Recent research on joint or dyadic decision making has received renewed attention from behavioral scientists This interest is due mostly to the advances in analytic and conceptual models used to study interaction processes A number of related disciplines have used distinctive paradigms to study the same focal problem namely the processes by which two people interact come to resolve a problem and finally reach a decision Dyadic Decision Making presents in a single integrated volume the conceptual and analytic strategies developed in communications research marketing psychology and sociology to investigate joint decision making

R.D. Laing: His Work and its Relevance for Sociology (RLE Social Theory) Martin Howarth-Williams, 2014-08-07 This study by a sociologist provides the most rigorous and comprehensive review to appear so far of R D Laing s work and theoretical development Martin Howarth Williams considers that Laing s insights into such controversial issues as the divided self and the politics of the family are of an importance that transcends their basis in clinical psychiatry and that they have a special significance for sociology Using the Progressive Regressive Method of Jean Paul Sartre the author illuminates the internal coherence of Laing s aims through the various stages of his work and shows how his ideas are shaped by consistent philosophic presuppositions and influences underlying his work To give as complete an account as possible of Laing s interests and to relate them to the broad stream of his thought the author explores Laing s involvement in other non psychiatric realms especially politics religion and eastern mysticism Material has been secured from a wide variety of recent sources which include interviews films TV appearances and the author s own personal recollections of informal talks given by Laing In the final section of the book Martin Howarth Williams isolates the concept of Intelligibility which he demonstrates to be the unifying theme central to Laing s theory and shows how this can be used as the basis for a critique of recent developments in sociological theory as well as a starting point towards a genuinely dialectical sociology
