Interpersonal Communication In Older Adulthood Interdisciplinary Theory And Research:

Interpersonal Communication in Older Adulthood Mary Lee Hummert, John M. Wiemann, John F. Nussbaum, 1994-09-13

This book is particularly relevant now as the baby boomer generation is aging and a greater proportion of the world's population is growing older. Interpersonal communication is clearly the most critical process for promoting social integration and adaptation of older adults within society. Yet understanding of the complex dynamics of interpersonal communication with the elderly is severely limited and the aged are often stigmatized, stereotyped, and isolated. This book will help clarify the role of communication in effective social integration and adaptation of the aged by providing comprehensive and in-depth analyses of relevant research and theory. The book integrates information on the most important issues and contexts influencing interpersonal communication and aging, and the individual chapters are written by an excellent group of authors who have demonstrated expertise on their topics. The book is well organized, clearly written, and comprehensive. The major topics are logically organized and compelling. I highly recommend this book.

Gary L. Kreps, Northern Illinois University

Aging obviously occurs at many levels, with biological, psychological, and social systems showing multidirectional and interdependent changes. What is less obvious is how these factors affect communication in later life. This volume represents a strong contribution toward solving this problem by bringing together a group of prominent scholars with diverse perspectives on language, communication, and aging.

Elizabeth A. I. Stine, University of New Hampshire

The Hummert, Wiemann, and Nussbaum book brings together a strong theoretical base with the presentation of new data. The chapters go well beyond the typical literature reviews usually found in edited volumes. The contributors provide sophisticated presentations of a variety of socially significant and unique topics, including the communicative impact of physical and cognitive changes, sometimes associated with aging, patronization, verbosity, frailty, conversational skills, proper names, and the presentation of self. Some of the chapters are strongly quantitative, while others are more interpretive. After building a strong rationale for the volume, the editors go on to put together a series of well-written chapters that provide a much-needed emphasis on the social construction of relationships through communication. The book should prompt much new research and advance our understanding of interpersonal communication and the aging process significantly.

Teresa Thompson, University of Dayton

The rich diversity of theoretical and methodological perspectives highlighted within the various chapters is an impressive feature of this edited collection. These essays add conceptual breadth and depth to our understanding of interpersonal communication and the process of aging.

Mary Anne Fitzpatrick, Department of Communication Arts, University of Wisconsin

This book is a valuable addition to the gerontological literature. Written from the perspective of the communication researcher, it brings together existing literature and offers new insights to gerontologists working in many social science disciplines. I recommend Interpersonal Communication in Older Adulthood as a resource to any scholars interested in older adults.

Victor G. Cicirelli, Professor of Developmental and Aging Psychology, Purdue University

Message Production John O. Greene,2013-11-05 The last two decades have seen the development of a number of models that have proven particularly important in advancing understanding of message production processes Now it appears that a second generation of theories is emerging one that reflects considerable conceptual advances over earlier models Message Production Advances in Communication Theory focuses on these new developments in theoretical approaches to verbal and nonverbal message production The chapters reflect a number of characteristics and trends resident in these theories including the nature and source of interaction goals the impact of physiological factors on message behavior the prominence accorded conceptions of goals and planning attempts to apply models of intra individual processes in illuminating inter individual phenomena treatments which involve hybrid intentional design stance approaches and efforts to incorporate physiological constructs and to meld them with psychological and social terms The processes underlying the production of verbal and nonverbal behaviors are exceedingly complex so much so that they resist the development of unified explanatory schemes The alternative is the mosaic of emerging theories such as are represented in this book each approach according prominence to certain message production phenomena while obscuring others and providing a window on some portion of the processes that give rise to those phenomena while remaining mute about other processes The amalgam of these disparate treatments then becomes the most intellectually compelling characterization of message production processes
