Global Environment and World Politics Elizabeth R. DeSombre, 2005-01-01 Politically the world is composed of states Environmentally the world is made up of ecosystems This disconnection between ecological and political systems makes addressing environmental issues at the global level both more difficult and more necessary This volume examines how we should set about addressing the problems that face the environment internationally The field of international environmental politics draws on a variety of academic traditions It uses international relations theory to look at the concerns and actions of states but it also uses variety of new perspectives to explain issues that are unique to the study of the environment Elizabeth DeSombre explores four important approaches to the field international environmental cooperation the relationship between the environment and security the issues of science uncertainty and risk and the role of non state actors She explores these approaches with the help of case studies on specific problems facing the global environment focusing in particular on ozone depletion and global climate change the politics of whaling the protection of Amazonian biodiversity and acid rain in Europe and North America      Analyzing Social Interaction Lynn Smith-Lovin, David R. Heise, 2016-05-06 First Published in 1988 This special issue of The Journal of Mathematical Sociology reports continuing work on affect control theory a theory of social behavior that deals with role actions such as those of doctors toward patients with deviant behaviors such as those of muggers toward victims and with creative responses to events such as sanctioning a misbehaved child or labeling a deviant      The Oxford Handbook of Evolutionary Medicine Martin Brüne, Wulf Schiefenhövel, 2019-01-31 Medicine is grounded in the natural sciences where biology stands out with regard to our understanding of human physiology and the conditions that cause dysfunction Ironically though evolutionary biology is a relatively disregarded field One reason for this omission is that evolution is deemed a slow process Indeed the macroanatomical features of our species have changed very little in the last 300 000 years A more detailed look however reveals that novel ecological contingencies partly in relation to cultural evolution have brought about subtle changes pertaining to metabolism and immunology including adaptations to dietary innovations as well as adaptations to the exposure to novel pathogens Rapid pathogen evolution and evolution of cancer cells cause major problems for the immune system Moreover many adaptations to past ecologies have actually turned into risk factors for somatic disease and psychological disorder in our modern worlds i e mismatch among which epidemics of autoimmune diseases cardiovascular diseases diabetes and obesity as well as several forms of cancer stand out One could add depression anxiety and other psychiatric conditions to the list The Oxford Handbook of Evolutionary Medicine is a compilation of up to date insights into the evolutionary history of ourselves as a species exploring how and why our evolved design may convey vulnerability to disease Written in a classic textbook style emphasising physiology and pathophysiology of all major organ systems the Oxford Handbook of Evolutionary Medicine is valuable reading for students as well as scholars in the fields of medicine biology anthropology and psychology      Environment & Planning A. ,1978      Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports ,1989      Charlotte Brontë and Contagion Jo Waugh, 2024-08-10 This book argues for the significance of contagious disease in critical and biographical assessment of Charlotte Brontë's work Waugh argues that contagion infection and quarantining strategies are central themes in Jane Eyre 1847 Shirley 1849 and Villette 1853 This book establishes the ways in which Charlotte Brontë was closely engaged with the political and social contexts in which she wrote extending this to the representation and metaphorical import of illness in Brontë's novels Waugh also posits that although miasmatic theories are often assumed to have been entirely in the ascendant in the late 1840s the relationship between miasma and contagion was a complex one and contagion in fact remained a crucial way for Charlotte Brontë to represent disease itself as well as to explore the relationships between the individual and social political and cultural contexts Contagion and its metaphors are central to Charlotte Brontë's construction of subjectivity and of the responsibilities of the individual and the group      The History of the Study of Landforms or the Development of Geomorphology, Volume 5 T.P. Burt, A.S. Goudie, H.A. Viles, 2022-10-20

Co published with British Society for Geomorphology This volume is the fifth in the definitive series The History of the Study of Landforms or the Development of Geomorphology Volume 1 1964 dealt with contributions to the field up to 1890 Volume 2 1973 with the concepts and contributions of William Morris Davis and Volume 3 1991 covered historical and regional themes during the classic period of geomorphology 1890 1950 Volume 4 2008 concentrated on studies of geomorphological processes and Quaternary geomorphology between 1890 and 1965 by the end of this period process based studies had become dominant Volume 5 builds on this platform covering in detail the revolutionary changes in approach that characterized the study of geomorphology in the second half of the twentieth century It is divided into three sections the first deals with changes in approach and method the second with changes in ideas and the broader scientific context within which geomorphology is studied and the final section details advances in research on processes and landforms The volume s objective is to describe and analyse many of the developments that provide a foundation for the rich and varied subject matter of twenty first century geomorphology

The Urban Fabric of Crime and Fear Vania Ceccato, 2012-06-21

How does the city's urban fabric relate to crime and fear and how is that fabric affected by crime and fear? Does the urban environment affect one's decision to commit an offence? Is there a victimisation-related inequality within cities? How do crime and fear interrelate to inequality and segregation in cities of developing countries? What are the challenges to planning cities which are both safe and sustainable? This book searches for answers to these questions in the nature of the city particularly in the social interactions that take place in urban space distinctively guided by different land uses and people's activities. In other words, the book deals with the urban fabric of crime and fear. The novelty of the book is to place safety and security issues on the urban scale by 1) showing links between urban structure and crime and fear, 2) illustrating how different disciplines deal with urban vulnerability to and fear of crime, 3) including concrete examples of issues and challenges found in European and North American cities and without being too extensive also in cities of the Global South.
