VICTIM IMPACT STATEMENT QUICK GUIDE

A victim impact statement is a written or oral statement presented to the court at the sentencing of the defendant. Victim impact statements give victims of crime an opportunity to share their story with the court. While victim impact statements are not mandatory, they are very beneficial. It gives the judge a chance to hear your side of the story. You also have a chance here to tell the judge how you want the sentencing to occur. While reading your statement sounds like an intimidating task, it is important to remember that you are NEVER ALONE in this process. Our Victim Witness Advocates are here to assist and help you along every step of the way.

What to Include in a Victim Impact Statement:

As you are preparing your impact statement, you will want to ensure it contains the following elements:

- The physical and emotional impact the crime had on you and your family.
- The psychological effects on you and your family.
- The financial burden or hardship you or your family may have endured.
- The explanation of medical and psychological treatment needed as a result of the crime.
- The importance of restitution.
- Your opinion or suggestion on the sentence.

Reminder: No two victim impact statements are the same. There is no particular format, but these key points can assist you in creating an impactful message.

Only you can write your statement.

What NOT to Include in a Victim Impact Statement:

While we understand how emotionally charged a moment like this can be, it's important to note that a calm, determined, practical, and direct victim impact statement will have the most significant effect on all who listen.

Avoid derogatory or foul language in your statement.

Avoid any wish for harm on the defendant.

Maintain focus on the impact that you and your family has endured.

Write it to the Judge:

You are reading this statement out loud to the Judge, so you want to be as respectful as possible. Try to make your statement understandable and relatable to the Judge.

Do not address the defendant in your statement. For example:

WRONG:

"You took my life away from me."

CORRECT:

"The defendant took my life away from me."

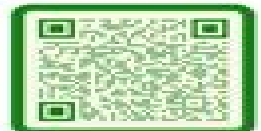

Reading your Statement:

We know that presenting an impact statement can be very intimidating and overwhelming. Here are a few tips to help ease any anxious thoughts while preparing to read your statement.

- Remain focused on reading to the judge. This will help you block out everything else that may feel overwhelming in the courtroom.
- Speak with confidence. This is about you, and how your life was impacted. You know your experiences, and this is your chance to share them with the court.

Victim impact statements are most effective when presented by the victim themselves, but if you do not feel as though you can read your statement, speak with your victim witness advocate who will help you explore potential alternative options.
