Frontier Development And Indigenous Peoples Progress In Planning S:

Frontier Development and Indigenous Peoples Tovi Fenster, Oren Yiftachel, 1997 Dialogues in Urban and Regional Planning 6 Christopher Silver, Robert Freestone, Christophe Demaziere, 2017-08-24 The Dialogues in Urban and Regional Planning series offers a selection of some of the best scholarship in urban and regional planning from around the world. The internationally recognized authors of these award-winning papers take up a range of salient issues from the theory and practice of planning. This 6th volume incorporates essays that explore the salient issue commonly referred to as The Right to the City. This theme speaks to a growing new movement within planning theory and practice with multiple aims and strategies but with the common objective of advancing a more just and equitable world. The right to the city functions as a manifesto advancing academic explorations of the opportunities for and barriers to expanding human and environmental justice. At the same time it extends beyond academic inquiry to engage directly with the policy, legal and political dimensions of human rights. The right to the city has been invoked by global bodies such as United Nations Habitat and the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization to bolster not only their agendas around fundamental human rights but advance urban policies promoting inclusion, sustainability and resilience. Dialogues 6 offers engaging explorations into the academic expeditions by the global planning community that have helped to energize this movement. The papers assembled here through processes of peer review represent an invaluable collection to untangle the complexities of this dynamic new approach to urban and regional planning. The Dialogues in Urban and Regional Planning DURP series is published in association with the Global Planning Education Association Network GPEAN and its member national and transnational planning schools associations.

Ethics and Planning Research Francesco Lo Piccolo, 2016-05-13 The consideration of ethics in social research has gained increasing prominence in the past few years, particularly research which seeks to inform public policy. This important and unique book provides a thorough examination of the issues relating to research ethics in planning for an international audience. The authors examine alternative frameworks within which ethical action can be discussed and critically describe the key institutional arrangements surrounding the management of ethical behaviour in research. Also included are highly relevant accounts of ethical challenges faced in planning research.

Unlearning the Colonial Cultures of Planning Libby Porter, 2016-02-24 Colonialization has never failed to provoke discussion and debate over its territorial, economic and political projects and their ongoing consequences. This work argues that the state-based activity of planning was integral to these projects in conceptualizing, shaping and managing place in settler societies. Planning was used to appropriate and then produce territory for management by the state and in doing so became central to the colonial invasion of settler states. Moreover, the book demonstrates how the colonial roots of planning endure in complex post-colonial societies and how such roots manifest in everyday planning practice, continue to shape land use contests between indigenous people and planning systems in contemporary post-colonial states.

Socio Economic Development in Indigenous and

Non-indigenous Systems in Brazil Herta Avalos Viegas, 2004 The rainforest zone in Brazil is under pressure through encroachment of farming and other sectors which lead to ecologically unbalanced development reducing the living potential of indigenous communities The Bananal Island wetland is located in the transition zone between the Amazon and Cerrado Savannah ecosystems The conflicting interest of the rural actors on using the natural resources lead to the demarcation of most of its territory as Indigenous Lands This book attempts to analyze the socio economic potentials of indigenous and non indigenous systems presented in the adjacent zone of Bananal Island along the Javae River Special emphasis is given to the relationship of the indigenous communities with smallholders expelled out of the island and large scale farm and ranch systems and how this relationship may affect the living standard of the two less economically favorable groups The results show that for indigenous communities some of the actions of the government had improved a few components of their living standard raising them up to the level of smallholders and the fishermen found in the region The smallholders were allocated in settlements The poor infrastructure of the settlement studied and the absence of financial incentives for agricultural activities push these smallholders to establish small enterprises in order to guarantee their living standard The large scale farms and ranches are mainly market oriented and are dependent mostly on the national economic fluctuation They are high dependent of external labour to run their production activities There is a concern about the scarcity of specialized technical labour in the region The training of the smallholders could fill this gap and avoid future encroachments into Bananal Island as occurred in the past
