Fundamentals of Salesmanship Norris Arthur Brisco,1919 Fundamentals of Salesmanship Norris A. Brisco,2015-06-02 Excerpt from Fundamentals of Salesmanship Industrial growth and business expansion depend largely upon efficient salesmanship Large quantities of goods must be sold at a profit It is easier to make goods than to sell them The salesperson is the leading factor in profit making and is the most valuable asset in any business Ignorance rule of thumb methods and lack of skill are factors increasing costs and inefficiency Customary ways of doing things are inefficient and wasteful The selling methods found in the average salesforce are not the result of careful investigation and acquired by careful training but are what are guessed to be best by management and salespersons Many managers even today believe that it is a waste of time to study principles underlying salesmanship and declare that scientific investigation and the careful study of methods of sale have their place elsewhere than in the selling department of a business The production of goods on a large scale increased competition in every branch of our industrial system Many managers began to study salespersons and methods of sale to see if it were possible to devise more efficient methods of selling This led to a careful analysis of the methods of sale The result has been the reduction of salesmanship to fundamental principles The average manager has yet to realize that no sale takes place unless it is a case of filling orders which does not involve these fundamental principles Salesmanship is no longer based upon guesswork but upon knowledge The explaining of the fundamental principles underlying salesmanship is the purpose of this book About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Fundamentals of Salesmanship California. Bureau of Business Education,1948 Fundamentals of Sales and Marketing Mike du Toit,2011-03 It is widely recognised that sales and marketing are the two business functions that contribute directly to the bottom line of any organisation Marketing is more than a sequence of steps or a strategic process it is also a mindset that leads to good business philosophy The marketing mindset focuses wholeheartedly on customers and the satisfaction of customers needs while aiming to influence the entire organisation to strive towards customer satisfaction Sales on the other hand is that business function that ultimately closes the deal and brings the customer and the business together Without sales the customer would never achieve need satisfaction and the organisation would never meet its objectives The ultimate goal of meeting the customer's needs brings these two seemingly different fields together. This book serves to provide a fundamental understanding of both sales and marketing by equipping the reader with theoretical knowledge and practical examples that are applicable to a South African context.
