R. A. DeFronzo, E. Ferrannini, Paul Zimmet, George Alberti, 2015-05-18 The International Textbook of Diabetes Mellitus has been a successful well respected medical textbook for almost 20 years over 3 editions Encyclopaedic and international in scope the textbook covers all aspects of diabetes ensuring a truly multidisciplinary and global approach Sections covered include epidemiology diagnosis pathogenesis management and complications of diabetes and public health issues worldwide It incorporates a vast amount of new data regarding the scientific understanding and clinical management of this disease with each new edition always reflecting the substantial advances in the field Whereas other diabetes textbooks are primarily clinical with less focus on the basic science behind diabetes ITDM's primary philosophy has always been to comprehensively cover the basic science of metabolism linking this closely to the pathophysiology and clinical aspects of the disease Edited by four world famous diabetes specialists the book is divided into 13 sections each section edited by a section editor of major international prominence As well as covering all aspects of diabetes from epidemiology and pathophysiology to the management of the condition and the complications that arise this fourth edition also includes two new sections on NAFLD NASH and non traditional associations with diabetes and clinical trial evidence in diabetes This fourth edition of an internationally recognised textbook will once again provide all those involved in diabetes research and development as well as diabetes specialists with the most comprehensive scientific reference book on diabetes available Training-induced cognitive and neural plasticity Julia Karbach, Torsten Schubert, 2013-07-08 Throughout the entire lifespan individuals are required to adapt to the demands of changing developmental contexts and dynamic social environments The potential modifiability of a person's cognitive and neural processes has been referred to as plasticity One way to assess cognitive and neural plasticity is to apply training interventions and to measure the related changes in trained and untrained situations Over the last decade the literature on the effects of cognitive interventions has been growing rapidly oftentimes focusing on the magnitude scope and maintenance of training related benefits and their transferability to untrained tasks and abilities Recent studies show that plasticity is present across the lifespan although it seems to decline in older age and that the long term maintenance as well as the transferability of training gains strongly depends on the type and the intensity of the intervention The findings from behavioral cognitive training research have also been accompanied by findings from cognitive neuroscience The related observations oftentimes point to training induced changes in a number of cortical and subcortical regions which may be responsible for the magnitude of training and of transfer effects Thus cognitive training may be a promising tool for understanding basic mechanisms of adaptive behavior on the one hand and for designing applications and interventions within different disciplines in psychology on the other hand However not all studies have consistently shown beneficial effects of cognitive training and some questions that are critical for our understanding of plasticity are still unanswered What are the key processes mediating training effects on laboratory tasks and in real world situations Which characteristics of the training process and of the trainings situations mediate transfer effects Are training effects subject to age related changes How are training induced neural changes in the brain related to improvements in cognitive performance How effective are training interventions in patients with specific cognitive impairments To what extent can age related cognitive decline be compensated by means of cognitive training The focus of this Research Topic is on training induced cognitive and neural plasticity across the lifespan The goal is to provide a broad scope of state of the art research in order to enhance our knowledge regarding the mechanisms underlying plasticity We invite contributions applying behavioral computational and neuroscientific approaches reviews and theoretical contributions Contributions are also welcomed if they focus on the implications of cognitive training in applied fields like educational and clinical settings as well as rehabilitation and training science
