For Enquiring Minds S. Elizabeth Bird, 1992 Millions of people read weekly supermarket tabloids Yet little serious effort has been made to understand why so many Americans make a valued place for these papers in their lives Instead the tabloids are dismissed as the epitome of trash sensational gossip stereotyped ephemeral Libraries shun them As the papers are trashed by critics so by extension are their largely working class readers who are viewed as unworthy of consideration This book the first full length analysis of the tabloids within their historical and cultural contexts examines the interplay among tabloid writer text and audience Drawing on anthropology communications folklore and literary theory Elizabeth Bird argues that tabloids are successful because they build on and feed existing narrative traditions much as folklore does Men and women to judge from letters and interviews read the tabloids from different perspectives And while people buy the papers for various reasons readers tend to be alienated from some aspects of the dominant culture The tabloids are popular precisely for the reasons they are despised formulaic yet titillating they celebrate excess and ordinariness at the same time After beckoning readers into a world where life is dangerous and exciting the tabloids soothe them with assurances that be it ever so humble there is no place like home Thus while readers are active playful consumers we cannot assume that the papers offer a real opportunity to resist cultural subordination Atlantis Rising Magazine Issue 131 – SECRETS OF TIWANAKU
