A house is a site the bounds and focus of a community It is also an artifact a material extension of its occupants lives This book takes the Japanese house in both senses as site and as artifact and explores the spaces commodities and conceptions of community associated with it in the modern era As Japan modernized the principles that had traditionally related house and family began to break down Even where the traditional class markers surrounding the house persisted they became vessels for new meanings as housing was resituated in a new nexus of relations The house as artifact and the artifacts it housed were affected in turn The construction and ornament of houses ceased to be stable indications of their occupants social status the home became a means of personal expression and the act of dwelling was reconceived in terms of consumption Amid the breakdown of inherited meanings and the fluidity of modern society not only did the increased diversity of commodities lead to material elaboration of dwellings but home itself became an object of special attention its importance emphasized in writing invoked in politics and articulated in architectural design The aim of this book is to show the features of this culture of the home as it took shape in Japan

Documenting Mobility in the Japanese Empire and Beyond Takahiro Yamamoto, 2022-11-07 This book tackles the question of border control in and around imperial Japan in the first half of the twentieth century with a specific focus on its documentation regime It explores the institutional development media and literary discourses and on 1 the ground practices of documentary identification in the Japanese empire and the places visited by its subjects The contributing authors covering such regions as Korea Manchuria Taiwan Siberia Australia and the United States place the question of individual identity in the eyes of the respective governments in dialogue with the global developments of the identification and mobility control practices The chapters suggest the importance of focusing more than previously on the narrative of individual identification not as a tool for creating nation states but as a tool for generating strengthening and maintaining asymmetrical relationships between people of different socioeconomic backgrounds who moved in and out of empires This book joins the effort in the recent scholarship in migration history to highlight experiences of migrants beyond the transatlantic world and that in East Asian history to investigate the space and connections beyond the boundaries of the nation states By bringing together the analyses on the trans Pacific mobility and Japan s imperial expansion and its aftermath in East Asia it shows a complex interplay between state power and moving individuals two forces whose relationships went far beyond simple competition
