Women and Weapons in the Viking World Leszek Gardela, 2021-09-02 Invigorating Garde reappraises the connections between women and violence in an early medieval society that has left few texts to guide us. Studies in Late Antiquity This book sets out to investigate the idea of the armed woman in the Viking Age through a comprehensive and cross-cultural approach and weaves a nuanced picture of women's lives in the Viking world. The Viking Age c. AD 750-1050 is conventionally portrayed as a tumultuous time when hordes of fierce warriors from Scandinavia wreaked havoc across the European continent and when Norse merchants traveled to distant corners of the world in pursuit of slaves, silver and exotic commodities. Until fairly recently, Norse society during this pivotal period in world history has been characterized as male dominated with women's roles dismissed or substantially downplayed. There is, however, ample textual and archaeological evidence to suggest that many of the most spectacular achievements of Viking Age Scandinavians in craftsmanship, exploration, cross-cultural trade, warfare and other spheres of life would not have been possible without the active involvement of women and that both within the walls of the household and in the wider public arena, women's voices were heard, respected and followed. Lavishly illustrated, this pioneering book explores the stories of the female warrior and women's links with the martial sphere of life in the Viking Age using literature and archaeological evidence from Scandinavia and the wider Viking world to examine the motivations and circumstances that led women to engage in armed conflict. Bodies,

Beings, and the Multiple Burial Rite of the Western Viking World Claire F. Ratican, 2024-09-25 This book explores multiple burials, the presence of more than one individual within a grave within the Viking Age mortuary landscape throughout Scandinavia and the lands of their westward diaspora. Even though a number of spectacular examples have captured the imagination of professionals and the public alike, multiple burials have not been the subject of dedicated and systematic archaeological investigation. By adopting a perspective grounded in relationality and an analysis that centres on three types of beings: humans, animals and things, this book explores the ways in which each being entered into entangled relationships with the other, thereby mutually constituting the nature of their existence in Viking Age minds. For the first time, the corpus of Viking Age multiple burials located across the lands of the Western Scandinavian diaspora and their counterparts in the urban trading centres of Kaupang, Norway and Hedeby, formerly Denmark, is synthesised into a single study, firmly situating the multiple burial rite within the wider suite of normative burial practices observed across the Viking World. The book meaningfully engages with a developing discourse in the Scandinavian tradition, increasingly revealing the fluidity of being across human, animal and thing bodies in Iron Age mentalities and material culture. Ultimately, it poses the question: are humans, animals and things similar forms of bodies and beings in the Viking World? This book will appeal to students and researchers of death and burial in the Viking World. Bronzization: Essays in Bronze Age Archaeology
