Transformative Arts Gary A. Berg, 2024-03-02 Traditional fine arts are often regarded as rarefied something accessed by the uniquely talented and displayed in impressive museums or on lavish stages Art thusly conceived is something that most people never practice in their lives Yet in day to day life we all experience creative satisfaction through interaction with the physical and social environment that is a form of artistic practice In Transformative Arts Biological Digital and Everyday Aesthetics Gary A Berg explores what we gain through understanding ways to live imaginative lives and considers the increasingly important collaborative role of computers and interaction with nature Art in the Making Kerstin Mey, 2005 Contemporary cultural practices have blurred and eroded traditional disciplinary boundaries of art and its discourses and the ways in which they are taught They have called into question the ideological premises and cultural assumptions on which traditional academic subjects were founded and which have underwritten the segregation between practice pragmatic and speculative thought The Scottish Theoros Forum for Interdisciplinary Debate was jointly initiated by the Department of Philosophy and the School of Fine Art at the University of Dundee to create a space for dialogue between and across the various disciplines that are concerned with the study of visual arts practice aesthetics theory history and criticism Theoros has initiated a series of international conferences bringing together professionals who are engaged in the research and teaching of art from different disciplinary perspectives This volume contains selected contributions to the first Scottish Theoros conference on Aesthetics Historicity and Practice held in Dundee in 1998 Historicity marks the temporal nature of our existence and experience It forms a central aspect in the making of and reflection on art Here historicity is explored as a common ground for the integration of practice critical thought and historical enquiry in the spaces of higher education and professional engagement

Rivista di Estetica 86 AA.VV., 2024-12-11 The concept of speculative thinking is in many ways ambiguous First the concept of speculation refers on the one hand to philosophical research i.e. to the need for philosophy to remain committed to pure thought and not to bend to instances alien to conceptual ones while on the other hand it refers to financial transactions aimed at profiting from fluctuations in market prices Second even within philosophical discourse the term remains equivocal At times speculation refers to an inquiry that precisely by being merely speculative seems detached from the practical concerns of the world thereby indicating the essential theoretical element of philosophical inquiry at others the term marks the extreme experience of thinking in which ordinary discursiveness touches its limits After a period of relative oblivion the notion of the speculative has returned today within contemporary philosophical debate This special issue focuses on the notion of speculative thinking both in its Hegelian and neo Hegelian interpretations and in contexts that partially diverge from that tradition aiming to philosophically explore the term's rich and varied meanings

Danto and His Critics David Carrier, 1998 Philosophical Perspectives on Art Stephen Davies, 2010-02-18 A particularly useful informative and stimulating work for any reader with an interest in the philosophy of art Katerina Bantinaki Analysis

Explanatory Translation V. Rantala, 2013-11-11 In this book Veikko Rantala makes a systematic attempt to understand cognitive characteristics of translation by bringing its logical pragmatic and hermeneutic features together and examining a number of scientific logical and philosophical applications The notion of translation investigated here is called explanatory but it is not a translation in the standard sense of the word since it admits of conceptual change Such translations can take various degrees of precision and therefore they can occur in contexts of different kinds from everyday discourse to literary texts to scientific change The book generalizes some earlier approaches to translation especially the one presented in David Pearce's monograph Roads to Commensurability Rantala argues that the notion has something in common with Thomas Kuhn's earlier conception of scientific change and his views of language learning but it can be used to go beyond Kuhn's well known ideas and challenge his criticism concerning the import of the correspondence relation
