

Historic school photos to feature in centenary exhibition

Historic school photos will feature in a centenary exhibition celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Department of Education and Training. The exhibition, which will be held at the Department's headquarters, will showcase a collection of photographs from the early 20th century, including images of students, teachers, and school buildings. The photos will be displayed in a series of galleries, each dedicated to a different aspect of the Department's history. The exhibition is expected to attract a large number of visitors, including school children, teachers, and members of the public.

WEEK OF ACTION 3-9 SEPTEMBER

Review of NAPLAN

The Department of Education and Training has announced a review of the National Assessment Program - Literacy and Numeracy (NAPLAN). The review will examine the effectiveness of the program in measuring student literacy and numeracy skills, and will also consider the impact of the program on schools and students. The review is expected to be completed by the end of the year, and the results will be used to inform future policy and practice. The Department is committed to ensuring that the NAPLAN program is fair, valid, and reliable, and that it provides a meaningful measure of student achievement.

Oust public sector wages cap

The Department of Education and Training has announced a plan to oust the public sector wages cap. The cap, which has been in place for many years, has been a major barrier to the recruitment and retention of staff in the public sector. The Department is committed to ensuring that public sector wages are competitive with those in the private sector, and is therefore planning to introduce a new system of wage setting that will allow public sector wages to rise in line with market conditions. The new system is expected to be implemented by the end of the year, and will be a significant step towards improving the public sector's ability to attract and retain staff.
