Historian's Guide to Early British Maps Helen Wallis, Anita

McConnell, 1995-04-06 Great Britain and Ireland enjoy a rich cartographic heritage yet historians have not made full use of early maps in their writings and research This is partly due to a lack of information about exactly which maps are available With the publication of this volume from the Royal Historical Society we now have a comprehensive guide to the early maps of Great Britain The book is divided into two parts part one describes the history and purpose of maps in a series of short essays on the early mapping of the British Isles part two comprises a guide to the collections national and regional Now available from Cambridge University Press this volume provides an essential reference tool for anyone requiring to access maps of the British Isles dating back to the medieval period and beyond Interchange 26/Mohawk River Crossing, New York State Thruway, Cities of Rotterdam and Glenville, Schenectady County, 1995 Fire Insurance Maps of Iowa Cities and Towns Peter H. Curtis, 1983 City Limits Megan Kimble, 2024-04-02 An eye opening investigation into how our ever expanding urban highways accelerated inequality and fractured communities and a call for a more just sustainable path forward Megan Kimble manages to turn a book about transportation and infrastructure into a fascinating human drama Michael Harriot New York Times bestselling author of Black AF History Every major American city has a highway tearing through its center Seventy years ago planners sold these highways as progress essential to our future prosperity The automobile promised freedom and highways were going to take us there Instead they divided cities displaced people from their homes chained us to our cars and locked us into a high emissions future And the more highways we built the worse traffic got Nowhere is this more visible than in Texas In Houston Dallas and Austin residents and activists are fighting against massive multi billion dollar highway expansions that will claim thousands of homes and businesses entrenching segregation and sprawl In City Limits journalist Megan Kimble weaves together the origins of urban highways with the stories of ordinary people impacted by our failed transportation system In Austin hundreds of families will lose child care if a preschool is demolished to expand Interstate 35 In Houston a young Black woman will lose her brand new home to a new lane on Interstate 10 just blocks away from where a seventy four year old nurse lost her home in the 1960s when that same highway was built And in Dallas an urban planner has improbably found himself at the center of a national conversation about highway removal What if instead of building our aging roads wider and higher we removed those highways altogether It s been done before first in San Francisco and more recently in Rochester where Kimble traces how highway removal has brought new life to a divided city With propulsive storytelling and ground level reporting City Limits exposes the enormous social and environmental costs wrought by our allegiance to a life of increasing speed and dispersion and brings to light the people who are fighting for a more sustainable connected future Our Family, Our Town, 1987 Locating the Moving Image Julia Hallam, Les Roberts, 2013-11-07 Essays exploring the methodologies used by film scholars to develop a spatial history of the moving image Leading scholars in the interdisciplinary field of geo spatial visual studies examine the social experience of cinema and the different ways in which film production developed as a commercial enterprise as a leisure activity and as modes of expression and communication Their research charts new pathways in mapping the relationship between film production and local film practices theatrical exhibition circuits and cinema going creating new forms of spatial anthropology Topics include cinematic practices in rural and urban communities development of cinema by amateur filmmakers and use of GIS in mapping the spatial development of film production and cinema going as social practices Introduces some of the concrete ways practical mapping and GIS technologies help elaborate historical film projects The scope of many of these projects is breathtaking in scale Others embrace ethnographic methods that tell poignant individual stories Still others deftly merge qualitative and quantitative approaches As a whole the volume brings together disparate fields of study in interesting ways James Craine California State University Northridge This collection breaks new ground for cinema history Hallam and Roberts have gathered some of the foremost scholars who are mapping spatial histories of the moving image and the geographies of film production distribution and consumption Introducing new interdisciplinary methods and asking new questions Locating the Moving Image takes film studies into new territory beyond the boundaries of the text and its interpretation towards an understanding of the relationship between culture spatiality and place Richard Maltby Matthew Flinders Distinguished Professor of Screen Studies Flinders University
